morning from England. They come to do what they can to save their son and brother Hugh from the gallows. Theirs is a tearsome journey and their task is one that will be difficult, even though they do bring to it all the energy of love. They left Hyde, their home in England, on Wednesday of week before last, reached New York on Friday of last week, being on the sea nine days. From New York they came direct to St. Louis, having spent but one day resting. They left New York in the Pullman sleeping-car "Moscow" on the Eric road at to clock Saturday afternoon, traveled all of Saturday night, all yesterday and all last night, arriving at the Union Depot at 8 o'clock but long before that hour P. W. Fauntieroy and A. A. Oldfield were at the depot waiting the train's arrival. Both gentlemen had no difficulty in recognizing in most popular prevaiting for the mass commissed apparent, as the 7:00 trains from Uncinnati and has no cars or passengers from Uncinnati and has no cars or passengers from Uncinnati and has no cars or passengers from points further East. A delay at East St. Louis caused the train to be a few minutes late, but when it did arrive the car was soon found and the gentlemen had no difficulty in recognizing in the car was soon found and the gentlemen had no difficulty in recognizing in section 8 of the old Pullman car "Moscow," Mrs. and Miss Brooks. The relation of counsel to Hugh Mottram Brooks, which Mr. Fauntleroy and his associate, John I. Martin, occupy, has been supplemented by a friendship which embraces the Brooks and the attorneys' families. Hugh's father in his several trips to St. Louis by his simple kindly ways endeared himself to all who knew him and especially to his son's legal representatives. So appreciative of them was he that when he returned home there was an

the gentlemen and Mr. Fauntiercy enavyored to get them out of the the gentlemen and Mr. Fauntieroy endeavored to get them out of the depot as expeditionsly as possible.
The train had stopped on the most southern of the Union Depot tracks and the Moscow was more quickly than by going eastward to pass around the front of the trains and so get out of the depot more quickly than by going eastward to the center of the depot. This proved to be a mistake, as some of the trains were very long. The party was forced to walk above Thirteenth street to get around the heads of the trains, and then retrace their steps to Twelfth street, where a carriage was secured.

and then retrace their steps to Twelfth street, where a carriage was secured.

was dressed simply in a brown cloth dress, and wore a dolman wrap trimmed with lace. Her simple brown bonnet had a touch of color in it, and there was a bright red in her cheeks. Her hair was dressed very plainly, and is quite gray. She wore brown cloth gloves a shade lighter than her dress. She was evidently very much fatigued with her journey, and said so.

was evidently very much latigued with her journey, and said so.

MISS BROOKS
wore a black dress of light material, made with plain draperies and puffed sleeves. Instead of being "almost pretty," as a gontleman who had seen her in England said, she is decidedly pretty. Her face is oval, and so not of the fashionable beauty form, but the features are regular and good with the exception of the month, which is somewhat large. She is full of life and spirit, though more restrained in her manner than American girls of 17 are wont to be. She walked to the carriage with Mr. Fauntieroy, while her mother leaned on the arm of Mr. Oldfield. She laughed good naturedly at the difficulty they had in getting out of the depot, and if her bright color meant anything, she had not suffered from the fatigue of traveling. That color was a wonderfully attractive point about her face. It was such rose blaze as all the art and all the rouge boxes in Christian of a glow.

BREAKFAST,
but neither had any appetite. They had been very bright, unaccountably so to the gentlemen, but during breakfast the secret of it came out. "Is it true," Mrs. Brooks asked, "that the Governor has already commuted Hugh's sentence?"

When she learned it was not true her manner changed. She looked at her daughtor and tears filled their eyes. For a time neither spoke. After breakfast Mrs. Brooks said she must see "our Hugh"—she calls her son so as all times—and so they started for the Four Courts. Miss Brooks and Mr. Oldfield entered the building first. They went to the jailer's office, where Mr. Oldfield introduced Miss Brooks to Jailer Mr. J. Callahan, and Mr. Fauntiercey introduced Mrs. Brooks to the jailer and to Alexis Gignoux, the jailer's assistant. Mr. Callahan readily gave them permission to enter the jail, and took them to the screen himself. He went into the jail to inform the son that he was wanted at the screen. Hugh had caught sight of the figures beyond the wire and was hurrying across the jail fror toward them when he met the jailer. "It's your mother come to see you," the jailer told him, and Hugh ran. There were murmured exclamations, "God bless you, Hugh!" and they crowded as on the other. Not one who saw the meeting but denounced the rule as barbarous, not even Jailer Callahan dissented from that view; yet he could not allow the condemned man to come out or pass Mrs. Brooks and her daughter into the jail. On the occasion of the elder Mr. Brooks' second visit his attorneys endeavored to secure his admission into the jailer could not allow it and the Sheriff would not. This morning no application was made for any greater privileges than the jailer do the arrival of 'Maxwell's' mother and sister in the building became known in a very few moments, and hundreds of police court frequenters were all anxiety to see them. So there was crowding and pushing about the jail-door and terraces of heads and peering eyes. Several times the guard closed the iron doors and shut off the view of the cago. Then the crowd would melt away. When the morbidly curious were gone the doors would be opened again. Then a new crowd would collect.

when the morbidity currous were gone the doors would be opened again. Then a new crowd would collect.

HUGH MET HIS MOTHER
at the western end of the screen and talked with her there for nearly half an hour. Then the guard opened the small window in the screen through which packages are passed to prisoners on visitors' days. Here Hugh kissed his mother and sister. After a few minutes the window was closed and they moved to the east end of the screen, where the conversation was continued. Mrs. Brooks and her daughter entered the screen at 9:40 o'clock. They left the jail at 12 o'clock. Mr. O'dfield was waiting for them, but Mr. Fauntleroy, being eugaged in the Hyatt fraud case in the Criminal Court, had gone away. "Where can I get some fruit?" Mrs. Brooks asked. "I told Hugh I would get him some." She was looking very tired and, indeed, quite worn out, but insisted on getting the fruit for her boy before she would go to rest herself. Then they went again to Mr. Fauntleroy's house.

Mrs. Brooks has something of the English route for her boy before she would go to rest herself. Then they went again to Mr. Fauntieroy's house.

Mrs. Brooks has something of the English fear of the American newspaper freedom. She did not like to discuss her son's case or her own plans. "The trip across was not pleasant," she said. "I have a great fear of the sea, and nothing but my poor boy could ever tempt me to cross it. I was nervous all the time I was on the water. The first two days out I was solt strong at the last. I have not slept through one night sines we left home—on the water or in the cars. Mr. Brooks is never troubled on the water. He is a very good sallor."

She said her son George would not come to America. He says he will never make the journey, having a prejudice against the country growing out of the treatment of his brother, He says there is no law here. She has firm faith in her son. "Our Hugh is innocent." That his position is grave, she appreciates, but that he will be executed she does not believe.

MR. BROOKS, she said, hat tried to get the British Govern-

MRS. BROOKS

will probably see the Governor privately, either before or after the public presentation of the appeal, to present her case as a mother of a boy who is being hurried to his death by popular hue and cry. She cannot believe "Our Hugh" is guilty, and she will not let the Governor believe it if words can avail.

Mrs. Brooks spent the remainder of the day at Mr. Fauntleroy's home and refused to see any callers. She will to morrow call on the Sisters of Charity, of whose goodness her son told her much. He especially asked her to see them, and she wishes to do so, that she may thank them for what they have done for RICH HILL, Mo., July 2.—A sad accident occurred yesterday at the residence of Mr. er Parsons, near this city, that came near resulting in the instant death of three of his sons. The oldest of the three, named Borket. went into the cellar or cave near the house closely followed by the two younger brothers stood in the cave were exploded, completely wrecking the cellar and burning the boys to wrecking the cellar and burning the boys to a livid mass of scorohed flesh from the knees to the head. They were all three badly burned about the breast and face. Drs. Heylmun, Allen, Gliett, Young and Higginbotham were all summoned and gave such relief as could be administered, and some hopes are entertained that they may all recover. The oldest of the three boys is about 17, the others 12 and 10, respectively. The father, Peter Parsons, is one of our most highly respected citizens.

HANNIBAL, Mo., July 2.—An accident happened in this city to-day which has cast a gloom over the entire community. About 6 o'clock this morning Matt Tozer, an employe in the Missouri Pacific Railroad office, aged not over 25 years, fell from a window in his room on the fourth floor at the Park Hotel, to a payed alley below, a distance of fully sixty feet. He was discovered a few minutes after the occurrence of the accident and carried into the hotel, where medical attendants made an examination of his injuries. They were summed up as follows: All the bones entering the left shoulder broken; left arm broken between the elbow and shoulder; hip bone broken and a cut extending into abdominal cavity; cut over left eye denuding the skull and fracturing the interval table. He was entirely unconscious and remained so until death came to his relief four hours later. gloom over the entire community. About 6

Beduced Majorities for the Conservatives in Recent Elections — Demonstrations Against Coercion—The O'Donnell Libel nit Against the "Times"—Russian Croy Prospects—Emperer William's Speeche —Foreign News,

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispai LONDON, July 2.—Although the Government managed to secure the return of their candimous falling off in the majority thus show has had considerable effect in damping the enthusiasm of the victorious party. The Times declares the result is as good as could be expected. The Standard says very much the same thing, and the Telegraph, editorially, is dumb. The moral of this, as of nearly all the bye elections, is that the dissentient Liberal party exists only in Parliament. Gladstone, in an animated speech of over an hour's duration, which he made under the trees in the garden of the artists' house at Hampstead, Saturday, showed the significance of the election. He omitted, however, to point out the significant fact that the Tory vote showed no decrease, while the Liberal candidate had more than one thousand five hundred votes more than at the last election simply because that number of voters who previously abstained voted this time for the Liberals. It is a sad omen, moreover, for the Tory party that since the election of 1885, be fore the Liberal split, there has been an in crease of 385 in the number of votes actually polled, of which 219 have been secured by the Liberals. It is observed that in a Tory county like Kent, which returns not a single Liberal member, any increase of the voting strength should naturally be more than shared by the Tories, while the reverse is the case.

DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST COEBCION. The demonstrations against coercion in London on Saturday were largely attended meet ings, held in thirty different constituencies. Some idea of the fatal mistake made by the Government in putting Dillon in jail could be formed by the enthusiasm attending every reference to Dillon's name.

THE O'DONNELL CASE.

O'Donnell's action against the Times begins to-day. In anticipation of a crush, wooden barriers have been erected at the entrance t the court. O'Donnell will be represented by one counsel, only a junior member of the bar named Ruegg; on the other side are a whole array of eminent counsel, including the Attorney-General and Sir Henry James, who refused the Lord Chancellorship when offered by Gladstone. O'Donnell has subprenaed about fifty witnesses, including the most prominent members of the Liberal party. The Times will call over one hundred, includ ing many from Ireland.

A QUEER SECT.

On Saturday the death occurred at Chatham of the leader of a strange sect called "The New and Latter House of Israel." The perso in question was a woman called Queen Esther the mother of Israel. She was the widow of private soldier who assumed the name of Jezreel, and professed that he had a revelation in the shape of a book called "The Flying Roll." He promised that his followers should live a thousand years on earth when the earth would become heaven. The death of Jezreel, a few years ago, gave a rude shock to his dupes, and his successor's demise will probably result in the collapse of the whole move

THE IBISH LAND QUESTION.

An Important Statement Drawn Up by Bishops of Ireland.

DUBLIN, July 2 .- An important statement or the present position of the Irish land question was drawn up and adopted unanimously at a meeting of the archbishops and bishops of Ireland, held last week in the College of Maynooth. The bishops say there are pressing grievances calling for immediate redress. They urge that the fundamental demand of the agricultural tenants of Ireland in the mat ter of rent is, as it has always in substance been, for the establishment of an impartial public tribunal to adjudicate between the landlord and tenants. The tenants do not claim that the amount of rent should be fixed by themselves: what they object to is that this should be determined by the arbitrary will of RUEGG A POOR SPEAKER. Mr. Berbert Gladstone sat by Mr. O'Der nell's side. The Times was represented by the Attorney-General, Sir Henry James, Mr. Lumbley Smith and Mr. William Graham wynne. Mr. Ruegg in presenting the case for the plaintiff declared that Mr. O'Donnell was not in sympathy with the Irish extremists, but held their methods in detestation. The Times had no ground for coupling his name with that party, and the plaintiff therefore claimed £5,000 damages. Mr. Ruegg also said that Mr. O'Donnell had not been connected with the Parnellite party since 1884. Mr. Ruegg's voice was monotonous. The impression create upon the auditors was not altogether favor able, and the court did not appear particularly

THE GREAT LOCK-OUT.

MANY MILLS SHUT DOWN ON ACCOUNT OF THE TROUBLE.

vo More Firms Sign the Amalgamated Scale—Several Thousand Men Idle at Pittsburg-A Tour of the Mills-What the Bosses and Strikers Say. The Situation

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 2.-Two more signa tures to the Amalgamated scale were reported this morning. They were the Laughlin Iron Co. of Leechburg, Pa., and the Findlay Iron Co. Findlay, O. This news was the occa of considerable rejoicing about the workmen's headquarters, but according to the manufacturers the action of these firms was discounted before the lockout began. The shut-down does not affect every workman in and around the mills, as has been reported. Many of those departments that are not governed by the Amaigamated Association scale will continue in operation. Jones & Laughlin employ 4,000 men at the American Iron Works, but only 2,000 of them are affected. The others are employed in the machine They will continue work as long as they have iron, and if trade will warrant an effort will be made to purchase material in the East. The pipe mill of A. M. Byers & Co. will also continue in operation although their rolling mill account here.

iron, and if trade will warrant an effort will be made to purchase material in the East. The pipe mill of A. M. Byers & Co. will also continue in operation although their rolling mill is closed. About 500 men are employed here, or about two thirds of the entire number.

In an interview to-day B. F. Jones of Jones & Laughlin reiterated the statement that the manufacturers would not start their works at any other terms than have been submitted to the men. Said he: "At our mills we will continue to operate the machine shops until the stock of fron is exhausted, when, if trade will warrant, we will purchase fron abroad. All the Eastern mills are in operation, and the price for boiling is $1.50 per ton less than is demanded by the Amalgamated association. We morely offered them the same wages as were paid in 1886-87, when the price of bar iron was higher than it is at present. Some of the men seem to believe that a two months' shut down will not affect them, as they will make in ten months what would be made in twelve. This is not the case as Eastern firms will supply the trade in the West that could be supplied by Wessern mills if the men accept the manufacturer's scale. I do not care to make an estimate, but I think fully $20,000 in wages alone will be lost in Pittsburg every day during the strike. A great deal of money that might be earned here in Pittsburg will go east."

A telegram from Youngstown says: Thore is no change in the situation at the mills here, all being idle and many employes leaving to only a vacation elsewhere. At the sheet mills of Summers & Co., one of the company said this morning that they would pay scale prices and the employes were willing to resume work on Thursday morning, if there was no interference from officers of the Amalgamated Association. The company has never signed a scale, though paying scale wages.

The LOCK-OUT.

A tour of the mills to-day shows the lock-out here about more complete than was expected. All the mills but the few non-union concerns and the machine shops of Jone

THE HOTTEST YET.

A Warm Day, But a Promise of Cooler Weather To-morrow.

When the clerk of the weather mounted the little ladder leading to the thermometer on the roof of the Custom-house, this morning at 7 o'clock, he gave a low whistle, for the instrument registered 76 deg., hotter than it has been at this hour at any time this summer, though on June 19 and 21 the temperature was warmer by 1 deg. at 6 a. m. The mercury was bent on record breaking, however, and had so well succeeded at 1:39 p. m. that 30 deg. was indicated, the maximum of the year, this beating the best previous record of the season, $8.5 deg. which was reached on June 6 and 7. The quicksliver has been steadily soaring upward all day, under inspiration from the Northwest, where the barometer is quite low. At 7 a. m. St. Paul was reveling in the same temperature as St. Louis, 76 degs., with Yankton at 78, Huron at 72, and Oma ha at 74 degs. Only a faint breeze has meanwhile been stirring, the wind from the south this afternoon traveling at the languid rate of about six miles an hour. At 3 o'clock down town thermometers were novering about 26 degrees, but relief is expected by to-morrow afternoen. The low barometer area is progressing eastward, and it is not improbable that rain and wind will cool the atmosphere by this time to-morrow. roof of the Custom-house, this morning

ATTEMTED PARRICIDE.

A Family Quarrel Leads to a Tragedy a Gainesville, Tex.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch. GAINESVILLE, Tex., July 2.-There is great excitement in this city over an attempted par ricide here yesterday evening. Potter Harris a young man 20 years of age, became enraged at his father, went to his room, secured his revolver and returned to the father's room to kill him, but was intercepted by the mother and a colored woman, the house servant, and in the tussle trying to wrench the revolver from the infuriated young man be became provoked at the negro woman and shot her through the head, fatally wounding her. The father made his escape to the street, gave the alarm and the police came to the rescue and arrested the young man. The difficulty grew out of a dispute over 10 cents worth of ice the wife and mother had bought, which the husband refused to allow her ton retain and ordered taken back. The young man resented the insult. Hot words led to blows, then to pistol shots. Old man Harris is very wealthy but is a regular miser, and bears the reputation of being so niggardly with his family that they frequently want for the necessaries of life. SHOCKING BRUTALITY. Alleged Abuse of a 15-Year-Old Girl-City Hall Notes.

A colored girl, aged 15, called at the Mayor's ffice this afternoon and told a story which, it true, reveals one of the most outrageous affairs hat has occurred in this city for a long time She stated that her name was Flora Hobbi and that she came hither from Fredericktown, Mo., some four months ago. Fredericktown, Mo., some four months ago. She found employment with a colared woman, who, she said, keeps a house of bad character on Morgan street. This woman proved a very brutal mistress. She insisted on the girl doing things which were repugnant to her, and on her refusal beat her unmereifully. So badly did sine treat her, indeed, that the girl was compelled to go to the hospital where, as results of the beating, she says, she almost went blind. She now sought for transportation to her home. The case will probably be turned over to the police.

Among the miscellaneous books are speeches of John Bright on questions of public policy, Anbrey De Vere's essays, chiefly on poetry, including comments on Spenser. Wordsworth, Milton, Kelly, and Keats; John Morley's aphorisms and also the same author's critical miscellanles, and George Saintsburg's "History of Elizabethan Literature." Among the biographical works are Morley's "Burke," Harrison's "Cromwell," "Lotters and Journal of Jevons." by his wife; "Personal Recollections of Sir Frederick Pollock, Freeman's "William the Conqueror," Traili's "William the Third' and Creighton's "Cardinal Wolsey."

The addition to the theological and PHILOSOPHICAL DEPARTMENT of the library is quite extensive. Among the latter is Prof. Caird's "Social Philosophy and Religion of Comte," the point made by Prof. Caird being to show that Comte's conclusions must be carried further and that if we go with him as far as his Religion of Humanity we are carried to take the step which carries us to the Religion of God. The treatise is acutely reasoned, perspicuous and admirably aimed at the vital points of the whole positive or agnostic philosophy. Edward Von Hartmann's "Philosophy of the Unconscious." arriving at speculative results according to the inductive method of physical science, translated by W. C. Lord Fauntleroy." The original of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is Mrs. Burnett's younger son, Vivian, who has experienced in his small life many of the incidents related in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Cedric's acquaintance with the apple woman, for instance, is taken from real life, so to speak. An incident that did not appear in the story was recently told me by an intimate friend of Mrs. Burnett. One day Vivian Burnett asked an old apple-woman, whom he religiously patronized in Washington if she were "in society."

"My mamma is in society; are you?"

"Biess you, no child, I reckon I ain't in what you call society. What is it?"

"Society," said Vivian, "why it's a thing where there's lots of people who all come to your house, and they come up to your mamma, who is in the drawing-room looking very beautiful, in a lovely dress, and they shake hands with her and say "Why how de you do? and then they gabble, gabble, gabble, gabble, gabble, gabble, gabble, and then they come up gayn to your mamma and say, "Oh, I'm so sorry, but I must go now, good-bye," and then they ge away and that's all,"

THE leading local political event of last week was the anti-Francis combine. This was reported exclusively in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. The Sun-DAY POST-DISPATCH, moreover, was the only paper which had any news of the arrival in this country of the mother and sister of MAXWELL; it was the only paper which had a reporter present at the hillclimbing contest, an event which interested the whole bloyoling world, and it did not omit a single item of news which appeared in any of its comtemporaries. As a newspaper the SUNDAY POST-DIS-PATCH has never been left.

A FEW years ago CREED HAYMOND WAS a Democrat and a raging anti-monopolist in California politics. Now he receives a salary of $25,000 a year from STANFORD and HUNTINGTON and is a Republican manager. Senator FRANK HISCOCK of New York was a candidate on the Democratic ticket in 1872, but he afterward married a million or so and is now a Republican. DEPEW, like HISCOCK, was a in 1872, and made bitter speeches against GRANT, but now, as President of various Vanderbilt corporations, his salaries aggregate $100,000 a year, or twice the salary of a President of the United States, and he is a Republican of course. The monopolists will pay any price for a smart, nervy man whom they way is las.

WILL HE REPUDIATE IT?

Already the Republicans in Congress are beginning to squirm on the new revenue plank of their platform. They deny that it means cheap whisky and tobacco. They make the absurd explanation that, after relieving those articles of Federal taxation, they intend that the same or heavier taxes shall be imposed by States and municipalities. But the numerous and influential Republican papers like the Chicago Tribune, Omaha Bee and St. Paul Pioneer Press, that have repudiated the platform have exposed the absurdity of this explanation also.

There is reason to believe that MR. BLAINE may persuade HARRISON to knock that plank out of the platform in his letter of acceptance. In a letter published in the Philadelphia Press prior to his nomination in 1884 Mr. BLAINE took great pains to put the Pennsylvania protectionists on their guard against favoring a repeal of the internal revenue taxes. He knew that the high-tariff men were, for an obvious reason, eager to deprive the Federal Treasury of that source of revenue, and he proposed that they should attain their object, not by abolishing the internal revenue taxes, but by distributing the proceeds thereof among the States according to population for State purposes. But a few months ago, in an authorized publication of his views on the President's message, MR. BLAINE, in response to the question whether he would advise the repeal of the whisky tax,

No, I would not. Other considerations than those of financial administration are to be taken into account with regard to whisky. There is a moral side to it. To cheapen the price of whisky is to increase its consumption enormously. There would be no sense in urging the reform wrought by high license in many States if the National Government neutralizes the good effect by aking whisky within reach of every one at 20 cents gallon. Whisky would be everywhere disa gallon. Whisky would be everywhere dis-tilled if the surveillance of the Government even by a policy as rigorous and searching as that with which Russia pursues the Nihilists. It would destroy high license at once in all the States. * * * So long as there is whisky to tax, I would tax it. * * * The tax on whisky by the Federal Government, with its suppression of all illioit distillation and consequent enhancement of price, has been a powerful agent in the temper-ance reform by putting it beyond the reach of so

As Mr. BLAINE says, the Federal tax and the Federal surveillance of the manufacture alone prevent illicit distillation and enable States and municipalities to impose and collect a high license tax on the retail traffic. Abolish the internal revenue law and every man with $500 of capital could be a distiller; whisky would be cheaper than beer is now; saloon licenses would have to be very low, as they were before the war, or would not be taken out at all, and neither State regulation nor State prohibition could compete with the flow of cheap whisky from countless portable stills, protected by the interstate commerce provisions of the Federal Constitution from State laws obstructing trade between States. Co-operative State legislation against the traffic would be unattainable, even if 'it could be made practically effective, and with the abolition of the internal revenue law all that has been done by it to promote the cause and other milder beverages than whisky would be lost ...

That internal revenue plank will be overwhelmingly condemned by the common sense of the country, and Gen. HAR-RISON should begin his campaign by an open, distinct and emphatic repudiation of the crazy thing.

Our lumber tariff is plainly nothing but a law enabling the monopolists who have obtained control of the pineries of Maine, Wisconsin and Michigan to levy a private tax on the prairie farmers and all other consumers of lumber. That tax is a premium on the destruction of our limited forest area. The pretext that it is laid to cover the difference between wages in this country and Canada is a sham, because such difference merely attracts Canadian timber-cutters to our side of the line, and it is a fact that nearly all of the timber on our Northern border is prepared for market by Canadian labor. Instead of freeing us from foreign dependence, this lumber tariff will in a few years more make us abjectly dependent on Canada for lumber. It is a law to protect Canadian forests at the expense of American

DRIVING IN DUST.

THE SPRINKLING ON LINDELL BOULEVARD VERY UNSATISPACTORY.

fovement to Get Up a Private Subscrip tion to Pay for Extra Sprinkling—Supt. Bohn Says the City Can Afford No Belief Under the Circumstances—The Principal Drive in the City Shamefully Dusty—How a Mistake Was Made in Drawing Up the

Grand avenue and Forest Park is very unsatisfactory. Yesterday afternoon vehicles 200 yards distant were often completely hidden from view by the clouds of yellow dust which rose from the Telford roadway. A drive along undertaking. To-day the Post-Dispatch is in receipt of several letters protesting against the condition of the principal drive of the city. One gentleman writes suggesting that a fund be raised by private subscriptions of $1 per month to pay for necessary sprinklings. He says, with confidence, that if his proposition is taken up by a committee of citizens und to pay for the extra work. From inquiry it seems that this is the only means of relief for residents along the avenue and for the thousands who dwell on the boulevard to Forest Park. In getting up the present plan for sprinkling the city was divided into forty-three districts, and Lindeil Boulevard was included in the sixth district. It was decided to put in the contracts the provision shat all districts must be sprinkled twice per day up to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times per day dup to June 1, and three times the conditions for doing the work did not comprehend the difference in the requirements of different parts of the city. President Flad argued against specifying any exact number of times for sprinkling the streets, holding that only one condition should be imposed, viz.: that the dust be laid. This suggestion was rejected on the ground that the condition was not sufficiently specific to embody in a contract. It was secordingly decided by a majority vote of the board to specify that the contractors should sprinkle a certain number of times euch day. The insertion of this clause has since proved to be a mistake, and a particularly serious one as regards the Lindeil boulevard.

To-day the last of the special tax bills for street sprinkling was made out and this afternoon they were forwarded to the Collector. It is consequently too late now for the city to rectify the mistake, which, must be righted by private parties.

Who is in charge of the street sprinkling, was questioned to-day about the unsatifactory work on Lindeil avenue, and said: 'Mr. Gerke of the West End Sprinkling for has, I must say, done everything required of him under his contract, and in fact more than his contract calls for. At present three sprinklings are required to sprinkle between 10 a. m. and noon. Then you rem now decided that it is important to ascertain by judicial investigation whether the allegations set forth in the petitions are true. It is stated that application will at once be made to the Supreme Court for leave to bring an action in the name of the people against the North River Sugar Refining Co. The permission of the court is not required in the case of the trust, and for that reason it is possible for the Attorney-General to proceed against the trust without much delay. Since we began attacking the trade conspiracies, whose aim is to kill competition, restrict production and extort high prices from consumers, we have repeatedly pointed out that the laws of this State and of other States afford a remedy specially so far as actual trusts are concerned.

"It is desirable that these State laws should be tested and customers everywhere will rejoice when they know that in this State they are to be tested in proceedings against a fully developed trust, which exacts tribute in all parts of the land. The North River Refining Co. ceased to do business after it had been absorbed by the ring. The Attorney-General was asked to bring suit against it under the statute which empowers him to take such action for the purpose of vacating the charter or annulling the existence of a corporation whenever such corporation shall have for-feited its privileges or franchises by failure to exercise its powers, or shall have done or omitted any act which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rites, privileges and franchises. He was asked to bring suit also upon the ground that the corporation had broken the iaw be engaging in such a combination as the courts have always declared to be unlawful and had entered into a conspiracy to commit an act 'injurious to trace or commerce. The law also says that the Attorney-General may sue in the name of the people and upon his own information or upon the complaint of any private party, any person who has surrped any franchise in this State or any association or number of persons who act with

WARD VS. WARD.

Mary Ward sought a decree of divorce from Nelson Ward. They were married July 1, 1887, and they separated in a month. Mrs. Ward accused her husband of beating and abusing her, and subjecting her to indignities rendering her condition intolerable. She alleged that he threatened to cut her heart out and suck she blood; that he called her vile names, making use of shocking language, and that one week after the marriage he gave her a whipping in the presence of other people. He went to his father's home in lowa and wrote her several insuiting letters. When he came back he went home, bringing another man with him, and whipped his wife in his presence because she refused to sing for them. Mrs. Ward further alleged that her husband threatened to put her in a house of shame. One day she alleged that he met her on the street and took her to the house of a friend when he gave her a severe bpating. He was generally under the influence of liquor, and he threatened to injure his wife with a knife on more than one occasion. She further alleged that he failed to support her. She asked for restoration of former name, Mary Sheahan.

PHILLIBERT VS. PHILLIBERT.

Mary E. Phillibert sought a decree of divorce frem August B. Phillibert. They were married. November 19, 1885, and they parted in October of last year. Mrs. Phillibert alleged that her husband subjected her to all kinds of indignities; that he whipped and kicked her in the presence of others, came home intoxicated frequently and threatened to kill her and did everything to render her condition intolerable. BOUR VS. BOUR.

Eva Bour, applied for a decree of divorce from August Bour. They were married March 10, 1879, and they lived together until October 17, 1887. Mrs. Bour alleges that her husband rendered her condition intolerable; that he had subjected her to gross indignities, and at home was constantly scolding without any cause whatever. He drank to excess and came home in a bad humor, calling his wife shocking names and threatening to kill her. On account of his intemperate habits he could not keep any position long. His wife alleged further that she had left him once, but upon his promise to amend had again consented to live with him. He soon broke his promise, however, and his conduct become even worse. He threated to stab her with a large knife. There were two children by the marriage.

John W. Hodgkin applied for a divorce from Elizabeth S. Hodgkin. They were married August 3, 1871, and they lived together until April 15, 1887. Mr. Hodgkin alleged that his wife left him without any cause or provocation on his part. She had repeatedly refused to return to him. One child was born of the marriage.

MUNDAY VS. MUNDAY.

Mary Munday applied for a decree of divorce from John L. Munday. They were married August 10, 1886, and only lived together one week. Mrs. Munday complained that her husband subjected her to indignities, rendering her condition intolerable; that he failed to support her and threatened to kill her. Mrs. Munday further alleged that her husband had betrayed her before the marriage, and one week after he left her.

Henry Clay applied for a divorce from Sarah Clay. The marriage took place March 23, 1883, and they separated on the 28th of January, 1857. Mr. Clay complained that his young wife subjected him to many indignities; that she associated with per sons of loose reputation, and went to houses of ill repute, and that she was given to tippling. Finally she left him.

The Distinguished Missionary and Writer

The funeral of Rev. Francis Wenninger, 8.J., who died at St. Kayler's College, Chednant, Friday morning, took place yesterday at Florissant, where the remains were interred in the priests' quarter of the Jesuita' burial grounds. The remains arrived on the Ohio & Mississippi train and were transferred to the Narrow Guage, a number of the feating of the

When the novitiate was reached the remains were taken at once to the grave which had been prepared. All the scholastics and priests at the Florissant house were in attendance at the interment, and only the ordinary service was performed.

Rev. Francis Kavier Wenninger was a distinguished member of the Jesuit order. He was born in Austria, October 31, 180, and was descended from a noble family. His father had two large estates, one in Austria and the other in Hungary, and the young man was educated under the direction of the imperial family. At an early ago he was ordained a priest, and became a professor of theology in an Austrian college. After holding the professor's chair for several years Father Wenninger joined the Jesuit order and accompanied the late general of the order, Rev. Father Beck, in his missionary tours through the principal countries of Europe. He came to this country on August 13, 1848, and taught theology in the Jesuit college in Cincinnati for one year after his strival. At the end of that time he again resumed missionary work, and was engaged in it altogether up to the time of his death. Father Wenninger was a voluminons writer. His works were mostly of an ascetic nature with a spiritual tendency. He was a never-tiring worker, and most of the notes for his works were made by him while traveling from one point to another to give missions. First there must be a notice and then a trial in a district court before the tenant can be turned out. The district courts are limited in number. It think there are only about eight of them. It might take a good many months to expedite these processes. In the meantime those ten ants would be living in those houses rent free. The victory would almost be won.'

Yet the mind of a Solon was not necessary to observe that his experiwas not necessary to observe that his experience in the East had not given him the same

There was a tone of regret in his voice when he spoke of the Browns that said inferentially, if not in so many words: "I am sorry I was released to the Athletics; I am sorry that I am not with the Browns; I am sorry that I won't share their glory when they win the cham-pionship, and, confound it ail, I'd like to be back again." But as necessity must needs be a virtue with the ball player, Curtis did not express himself thiswise, but reiterated his assertion that he "liked the When he was asked what he thought of the

'To tell you the truth, I think we'll be in it. If we come lower than third it will be hard ilnes, but I don't believe we will. The Browns are playing fine base ball. They are a fine lot of young players and how they do play! The Brooklyns are doomed. They will not be fourth and there isn't a man in the business outside of the Brooklyns that won't tell you the same story. They are too mixed up. They have players from the Mets, from the old Brooklyns and from St. Louis and they san't pull together. Caruthers is not the player he was. When he was here you couldn't find his like on the ball field; now he seems to be going down. Of course, Brooklyn has good pitchers, but that cry won't carry them through by any means. They we got to play mighty strong ball to down the Browns. "Why," continued he, "this club here is a winner from away back. They are always winners. They don't seem to be able to lose. They win, win, win. They are worth four Brooklyns. I see that Lyons has said that he wants to go away and leave the club on account of some ill-treatment he received. I read in the Post-Dispartor what they said to him to cause the trouble, and I was very sorry to see it. Lyons is a splendid little fellow, quiet and obedient and a good ball player. I hope that they will fix it up some way to keep him. They can't afford to lose him."

"Have you heard the rumor that you are to be bought back by the St. Louis Club and play with the Browns again?"

"Yes, I saw the paragraph to that effect in an Eastern paper, but I don't know what's in it. They haven't spoken to me about it yet."

"Would you like to come back?"

"Yes, I would. The Athletics are nice people but I would sooner play here than in the East. Besides the Browns are a winning club and I like to play on a winning club. Do you know that as sire as I stand here, I'm afraid they are going to beat as all out in the race. You see I know how they stick at a thing to the last minute. If they don't win it they'il be so close that the other fellows will shake. In my opinion all the props Brooklyn has under her will be knocked down before they return home. They playe lines, but I don't believe we will. The Browns are playing fine base ball. They are a fine lot of young players and how they do play!

However, when I returned from the East I determined to resign, and so informed the directors."

YALE AND HARVARD.

Graphic Description of the Manner in Which From New London, Conn., where on Friday was rowed the great Yale-Harvard race, came this description of that big event:

this description of that big event:

The crews are out on time! It is necessary to be so, for the referee, Mr. Hermann Oelrichs, athlete, boxer and oarsman, is a man of business as well and don't like delays.

From "Red Top" comes Harvard's pets.

From the old white farm-bouse with green shutters, kept by an ancient shellback, come the Yales. They strip off their jerseys in good time, and the shells take their positions.

—Yale the east side of the course and Harvard the west.

This is consisted to these sixteen boys look like bronze giants. Muscles are well developed on backs, arms and shoulders, and determination is stamped upon every face. This is no place to conult the feelings of another. Each crew wants his own, and asks no determination is stamped upon every face. This is no place to could the feelings of another. Each crew wants his own, and asks no favors.

The supreme moment, "Rahl rahl rahl" sharp as rife shots, are wafted by the northerly wind from the observation train, and from Bartlett's Point come the faint echoes of the cheers that must be given there like the discharge of musketry.

The sixteen lean forward. Rigid are backs and shoulders. The oars are clasped as a drowning man grips on to a plank, and, with the coxswains calling to their men, the moment long looked for, long feared and long wished passed has arrived. Referce Oelrichs gives the word. The sixteen cars take the water as one and the same instant 3,000 cheers from the observation train make the trees shake about the starting point.

Neither has any advantage, but with the third or fourth stroke Yale sends the nose of her shell an inch of two in advance of Harvard, and the crack, orack of cheers and yells seem like the explosion of dynamite.

Tale pulls swiftly, with a magnificent swing, and they let their backs do some of the work. Harvard doesn't do as well, and her stroke's position is painfully bad. In one-eighth of a mile Yale is in front, and from that to the fairsh it was the same. At the first half-mile flar water in favor of the blues, and it has taken Stroke Cross just 2m. 35s. in reaching that mark.

There is smoothness and uniformity in Yale's work, irregularity and want of confidence, too, in that of Harvard.

ONNUERING YALE.

At the mile flag there are six longths of clear water between the shells, and it is in favor of Yale. Harvard looks defeated already, but her friends cheer loud and long, and the isdies with crimson-tipped parasois courageously ware them at the crew and hope to encourage them.

First mile—Yale, 5m. 20s.; Harvard, 5m. 40s. Here Yale pulls 33 and her opponents 35. Not much hope for Harvard in the way of wak-ling.

"Hah! Rah! Rah! Har-vard!"

Yes, "its well to shout, brother crimsons,

Not much hope for Harvard in the way of waking.

"Rah! Rah! Har-vard!"
Yes, "tis well to shout, brother crimsons,
Your men will want it all. Yale draws away continuously, and Harvard, do what she can, falls to the rear.

Yale increases her stroke slightly nearing the mile and a haif flag, Stroke Cross giving 8s strokes for his men to follow, and the slender shell all the while draws away. Just twentyeight seconds difference here in favor of the blues, whose ears dip and raise like machinery, it being Yales V m. 45s. Hervard, 8w. He.
The race is practically over now. J. Grardcan never make up those nine or ten lengths of elear water, and that, too, with yonder leaders smiling. Yale's friends cheer and shriek. Blue ban-noise as depressed hearts can possibly do. ALL OVER.

Now the navy yard is passed. Half the way, and here look at the figures. Yale, 10 min. 35 sec. Harvard, 11 min. 2 sec. Any hope for the latter?

None! No earthly show for them! The crimsons spurt, but it does no good. Yale answers the spurt and for a while hits it up to 36, but with Harvard losing.

The two mile and a half flag gives the time, Yale, 12 min. 57 sec.; Harvards 13 min., 44 sec.—only 47 seconds behind, which means fifteen lengths or so.

only 47 seconds belind, which means fifteen lengths or so.
Ye gods: That Yale should whip the crimsons so badly in this the year of a tie.
The three-mile flag shows Yale nearly one minute ahead. Hard to tell why it is, but you must believe it. The three-mile-and-a-half flag gives the blues 1 min. 9 sec. the best of it, and so it goes on, until at last Yale passes the finish line amid the firing of cannon, the shricks of whistles and thousands of cheers, a mighty victor in the grandest time that this grand old annual match has ever shown—20 min. 10 sec.

a mighty victor in the grandest time that this grand old annual match has ever shown—20 min. 10 sec.

Harvard—well, the men from Cambridge are behind, something like a quarter of a mile. It is no matter now about being particular to a length or two; next year it may. Such a little thing is trifling now.

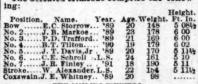

Every one cheers stroke Cross and every one pities Stroke Alexander, for he looks most heartbroken in the stern of the crimson shell. The jerseys are now given the winning and defeated crews, and with gusts of profanity from crimson lips and howls of delight from blue lips, the race is over.

Yale now leads one race in the series, and her position is a very proud one. She, of course, celebrated her great victory. As soon as the thousands reached the shore it seemed as if all the fire crackers outside the Empire of China had been suddenly brought to New London and exploded. Men beat blue banners into ribbons, and ladies never tired of waving their badges of loyalty to Yale.

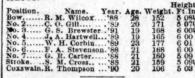

The men of New Haven never stay here after a victory, or indeed after a defeat, but leave for the City of Eims. They did so on this occasion, and the victorious crew, bag, baggage and winning flags, had gone at 7:45. There will be fun in that old town to-night. One word about the crews: Both seemed well trained snd fairly balanced. The victors were of great physical strength, and have been taught that a long pull and a strong pull are necessary factors in the winning problem.

The Beatern Eight.

The defeated crimsons comprise the following:

The boys of brawn, muscle and good judgment who won this grand race for Yale are as follows:

Jane: "How very sail But what did he Edith: "What's the score?"—only that and nothing more."—[hdgs.

at Jefferson and Washington avenues is the central spot of the summer-nighters, with car lines reaching to every part of St. Louis. It has a spiendid company, and Manager Short is making a point of furnishing operatio novelties as rapidiv as his patrons demand them. The South End finds a favorite resort in Schnaider's Garden, where light and inspiring music is made to wreathe the festive lager and sweeten the succulence of the pretzel.

The Kensington Gardens had an immense crowd last night. Every seat was claimed and the great amphitheater fairly groaned beneath its load of humanity. The performance of "Pjnafore" with its real ship and beautiful water effects was enthusiastically lindersed. The Vienness fencers and song birds are an attractive interpolation. The laddles measure their skill with the foils on the deck of the good ship and their act receives numerous encores. The music of the evening is not confined entirely to "Pinafore." Catchy airs from other sources are introduced and such liberties are taken with the score as are calculated to render the programme multi-phased and brilliant.

"The Vice Admiral" has held the attention of Cave audiences for some time now. It has had a plensant and successful run and demonstrated the time qualities, both from singing and acting standpoints, of the Conried Opera Co. To-morrow night it will give way to the meiodic waltz strains of Johann Strauss, when "A Night in Venice" will be sung. As in the case of all other operas this work will be put on with every attention to the details of accessry and costume, and with the best possible adjustment of the company's talent in the cast.

At Schnaider's Garden the bill for this week is "Girofie-Girofia." The opera is admirably sung, and the people who hear it express themselves in most favorable terms of the performance. Large audiences are the rule at this resort, which is strongly establishing itself in the favor of South Enders.

A JOLLY DAY.

George Francis Train Entertains Severa Hundred School Children at a Picnic.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch. gay time in Central Park Saturday. Mr. Train says not quite two hundred boys were with him, and he does not undertake to estimate the number of girls who flocked around him and joined in the picnic. The park authority is had given the children's friend permission to occupy Cherry Hill, and possession was held from 9 in the morning till 5 in the evening. It was a jolly day and no one was merrier than Mr. Train. The boys played base ball, rowed and raced; the girls kept house in leafy bowers where landlords never come. The grammar school boys in a group of about sixty had their photographs taken. Mr. Train stood in the center, resplendent in his white flannel suit and huge button-hole bouquet. Then there was another group in which were lade and lasses, the latter in the foreground, some of the boys pearing up from among a pretty cluster of young ones. All the children afterwards wanted Mr. Train to be taken alone. They all atood back from the crown of the hill and he took his position ready for the photographer. Suddenly two swans walked up right in front of him. Some of the boys started to drive them off, but Mr. Train shouted: "Oh, let them be!" Both birds turned and faced the camera in most graceful attitudes and kept perfectly quiet. The picture was saken, George Francis and the swans.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Thomas Harrison Concludes His Revival

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, July 2.—The announcement that the Rev. Thomas Harrison, the revivalist, was to hold farewell services at the James fill the church yesterday. On the wall back of the platform was a large floral piece bearing the legend, "Hallelujah Jubilee, 1700." The letters and figures were made of small red flowers, the background of yellow flowers. Mr. Weeks, who is a music teacher, startled everybody by rising and testifying to the miraculous recovery of his powers of hearing. He said he had been deaf for four years and that he had not been able to hear anything until that very afternoon when he heard Mr. Harrison plainly announce a hymn. There were many cries of "Glory," and "Praise be to God." Mr. Harrison said that there were nearly 1,800 converts, the result of twenty-three weeks rovival work. He said he might remain with the church a few days longer, but the revival services would not be continued. A collection was taken up for him. In his talk Mr. Harrison told of his own religious experiences. letters and figures were made of small red for him. In his talk Mr. Harrison told of his own religious experiences.
"I have been called illiterate, ignorant and ungrammatical," he said, "but I have gone on converting thousands and have not minded them any more than a steam locomotive is bothered by the barking dog it leaves behind."

False Announcement of an Engagement Ad vertised in a Newspaper. By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, July 2 .- A practical joker of designing mischief-maker, whichever he may be, is liable to learn that it is a serious matter to publish false notices of engagements. In one of the papers yesterday the following appeared as an advertisement, Engared.—Dooner—Hall—Miss Maud Hall of Brooktyn is engared to be married to Gen. Thomas Dooner of Washington Square Park, New York city. Marriage announcement hereafter.

of washington square Fark, New 10rk city. Marriage announcement hereafter.

The sileged intended bridegroom lives at No. 61 Washington Square, South, but was not at home yesterday. The laudiady, Mrs. McCormick, however, said he was only a general by courtesy and was a young man engaged in business at No. 12 Dey street. A reporter met Miss Hall at the Washington Square House and she was very indignant at the liberty taken with her name. She said: "My parents live in Brooklyn, but I frequently visit Mrs. McCormick, who is an old friend of our family. I have also known Mr. Dooner many years, but there is not the elightest foundation for such as amouncement and if I can find out who caused it to be made I shall have them punished."

A Solemn Celebration at the Convent of the Visitation This Morning. "Glory, Love and Veneration to the Sacred Heart of Jesus' was the golden legend woven in the silken banner hung high on the altar of the Visitation Sisters' Academy on Cass avenue this morning. which this order of cloistered nuns is right well entitled, for given over to them as a watchword July 2, 1688, it has been fostered through the mist of two centuries until as a precept it has animated the devotions of a million Christians. To-day, in short, is the 200th anniversary of the revelation made by Christ to Blessed Margaret Mary Alsooque at the monastery of Paray le Moniai in France, where, as the faithful believe, Jesus himself appeared in person to the saintly woman, accompanied by St. Francis de Sales, the founder of the order, Father de la Colombier, S. J., and other holy people. "It was then," wrote Blessed Margaret Mary, "that He discovered to me the inexplicable wonders of His love, and to whatextent he had carried it in loving men, from whom Heonly received neglect and ingratitude."

"Do you at least," had been the divine command, "give me the consolation of supplying for their ingratitude as far as you can, you shall receive Me in Holy Communion as often as you are permitted."

"Says the chronicle, sank deep into the soul of the blessed woman, who had first to encounter the doubts and misgivings of the religious, who are always slow to accept as of divine origin visions which may prove but illusions. But after a time the revelation as made was accepted in all sincerity and faith, and from that day the Sacred Heart has Been an object of especial veneration and love by the Visitation Sisters and by the priests of the Society of Jesus, who, sharing in the original command, have united in carrying out its spirit. But the day has a double meaning, for it is also the feast of the Visitation, whose annual recurrence, unattended by any other day for thanksgiving, is usually celebrated by the Sisters in a quiet menner. In preparation for the communion at this morning's mass the blessed sacrament was again left exposed, to be placed once more within the tabernacle late this atternoon. The little chapel, its

the comminion at this moral as an all blessed sacrament was again left exposed, to be placed once more within the tabernnele late this afternoon. The little chapel, its aitars sweet with flowers and aflame with waxen tapers, was filled this morning with pupils who are now enjoying their vacation, and by the Catholics interested in the academy. Solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Wm. Walsh, with Rev. Jas. Flanagan as deacon and Rev. O. J. McDonald as subdeacon.

deacon and Rev. O. J. McDonald as subdeacon.

MEMBERS OF THE CLERGY
present were Rev. Fathers Tuohy, Kane, Foley, O'Shea, Harty, McGlynn, Hennesy, O'Leary, McLaughlin, Power, Bile and Urban, Rev. Father Mueller, S. J., delivering an appropriate sermon. The music was exquisite, the choir of the academy having more than a local reputation. Beethoven's Mass in C was sung, and at the offertory Owen's Ave Maria, accompanied by harp, violin and organ. Sister Mary Paula, who has a soprano voice of sweet purity, led the choir, which, in addition to the Sisters, was made up of the following young ladies: Misses Beatrice and Carlotta Clark, Clara and Katie Jaes, Daisy Grace, May Bines, Mary Prendeville and Esther Zimmerman. At the conclusion of the last gospel the priests present intoned the To Deum in thanksglving for the sacred trust confided to their keeping, after which a funcheon was served in the refectory of the academy.

MRS. KEARNEY'S DAUGHTERS AND THEIR

Spent at Denver and the Vici ity in Trying to Obtain a Clew to the Murderer — A Mystery That Grows Greater With Time—An Arrest Daily Ex-

of the most wanton and brutal murders that the Colorado foot-hills have ever known. The decomposed body of Mrs. Kearney and her s-year-old grandson, James Hand, were found on a ranch some two miles from Edgerton Station, and about nine miles from Colorado Springs, by Miss Ellworthy and S. K. Harris. Mrs. Kearney and her grandson had been living being for the time, and the thought of danger neighbors were an aged couple and a man being for the time, and the thought of danger never occurred to her, although the only neighbors were an aged couple and a man named Thompson, who hewed the wood and drew the water for the ranch's tenants. Mrs. Kearney has three daughters in St. Louis. Mrs. Thomas Boylan, Mrs. Mande Beach and Miss Neilie Eliworthy, and another married daughter, the mother of the murdered boy, Mrs. Hand, in New York. For some time preceding the murder no letters had been received from Colorado, but mothing was thought of this, as the swollen mountain streams have a treacherous habit at times of barring the delivery of the mail. But presently the intelligence was received at St. Louis that hirs. Kearney had from Colorado, upon which Miss Eliworthy immediately set out to investigate. Reaching the bleak mountain station in a snow-storm, the young lady met Mr. Harris, a Colorado friend of the family, and together they proceeded to the ranch. The house was deserted, but search at the barn revealed the shocking spectacle of Mrs. Kearney's body, partly decomposed, and close by, in a box of lime, the corpse of the little boy, bearing traces of violence. That was all. There was not a clew of importance, not a tell-tale sign to mark the trail of the assassin or reveal his identity. Miss Eliworthy was almost crazed by the shock experienced, but bravely set about the task of running down the murderer. She was joined later by Mrs. Hand, her New York sister, who is still at Denver, and together the two ladies have labored long and carnestly. The bodies of the dead were interred at Colorado Springs, the Sheriff set his seal upon the ranch house and detectives were put to work. Mrs. Boylan, speaking for Miss Eliworthy, said this morning:

An Arrest TO BE MADE.

"The detectives announce they are about to make an arrest, but that is all we know, or all . we can say. The Governor of Colorado has offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the murderer, and an uncle of the slain boy has added a like amount. The peopl Mrs. Boylan showed the reporter a photograph of the murdered boy, who was evidently a handsome little fellow. Mrs. Hand will return in a few days and further intelligence is expected from this quarter.

offer from a big brewing company at Sedalia, Mo., and may locate there.

A singular fact in connection with the drowning of the unknown boy at the foot of Franklin avenue on last Wednesday is that no inquiries about him have yet been made of the Police Department. His clothing is at the Third District Station.

There were fifty-three cases on the docket of the Second District Police Court this mornof the second District Police Count this morn-ing, but none were important. They con-sisted chiefly of persons who were before the court to settle up for their Sunday merriment. Lizzie Johnson, alias Ferguson, and Kate Wright were fined $20 each for rambling, and Patrick Cunningham forfeited a bond of $200 by failing to appear to answer to a charge of disturbing the peace. There were twelve for the Work-house.

by failing to appear to answer to a charge of disturbing the peace. There were twelve for the Work-house.

Frederick Schwier, a grocer and salcon-keeper at Tweith and Madison streets, has filed complaints against Police Officer Stephen Cady of the Fourth District, in which he enumerates several cases of alleged misconduct against the officer, and has threatened to have the charges investigated by the Police Board unless the officer makes an apology. This Cady refuses to do. The trouble originated a few Sundays ago when Mr. Schwier, who wished to conduct his salcon business on Sunday, hired a man to watch for police officers. Officer Cady ascertained the kind of agame they were trying to play and arrested the watchman for lounging. On being taken to the station he was released by Sergt. Kelly, he promising to vacate the corner. Another man was put on the watch, but Officer Cady went into the salcon, which with the exception of the back door was closed. No one was visable, but the proprietor, but the officer hearing a noise behind the bar went back to institute a search. As he did this, the inmates escaped by the back door. Mr. Schwier charges Cady with going behind his bar without cause or warrant. A few days afterward Officer Cady arrested a driver on one of Schwier's wagons, for, as he supposed, driving an unilcensed vehicle, as he had looked over the wagon and harness and found no license plate. After going to the station, however, he found a license plate on the Seat and released the driver. In this case Mr. Schwier charges the policeman with oppression in office. In another case the officer is charged with calling a friend of Mr. Schwier's a spy. Several other charges of a similar nature are mentioned to which Mr. Schwier's a spy. Several other charges of a similar nature are mentioned to which Mr. Schwier.

Official information has been received at the Granite Mountain office of the completion of the contracts for the new 80-stamp mill and mill site. The new mill is to be located on Fred Burr creek, a mile and a half from the present mill. Beside the mill site and some $80 acres of adjacent ground, the company owns an entire section of land. On its property are four mill sites, four mineral claims, and six or seven placer claims. Ground has been broken for the new mill, all the brick and lumber required for its construction have been contracted for, contracts for the machinery have been closed, and part of it is now ready for delivery. Work on the Philipsburg extension of the Northarn Pacific is being rapidly pushed forward and the road will reach the mill about August 15. The town which has sprung up in the vicinity of the mill has been named Rumsey. The weekly report was received to day and was as favorable as usual.

The weekly report of the Hope was received to-day, stating that 155 tons of ore had been raised during the week in incline No. 1. North of the 28-foot raise west the ore runs from 80 to 40 cunces. The diamond drill has started in the Hope. The rich ore holds out well in the Potosi. In the Silver Chief the quartz has widened to five feet, assaying forty ounces, and is expected to pinch to about one foot of good ore. A ten-inch pay streak has been struck and the prospects are regarded as excellent.

A telegram from the Secretary of the United States Depositary Mine received this morning, reports the sale of another car of ore which run 94 oz. silver, 1-10 gold and 10 per cent. lead. The ear will net them about $575. The directors of this company, who are now in Oursy, Colo., will have their annual meeting and elect officers to-day.

NEW YORK, July 2, 11 s. m.—The stock market began the new week without change in character of the dealings, being very dull and without feature. The first sales were made in most of the list at slight declines as compared with Saturday's closing prices, but the subsequent trading was insignificant in the extreme with no animation anywhere outside of St. Paul. Union Pacific and Reading. The slight movements in prices were irregular though generally toward inwer figures in the early portion of the hour, prices rallying toward 11 o'clock, and at that hour side of the compared with a standard to firm at close to the open ing figures.

NEW YORK DON'T LIKE IT.

The Extension of New Jersey's Shore Into

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, July 2.—A special joint legislative committee was appointed last winter at Trenton, N. J., and Senator Wm. D. Edwards was mad) Chairman of it. The committee was instructed to investigate, in conjunction with the State Riparian Commissioners, the project of extending the shore from Communipaw to the lower portion of Greenville, $,000 feet into the New York Bay. Three or four meetings at which nothing of importance was done have been held thus far, and on July 12 another meeting of the committee will take place, when it is expected that some definite action will be suggested. Recently, at the solicity so will be suggested. Recently, at the solicity so of some of the shore owners, the filling of the line was extended nearly one mile and a hair. This did not give the deep water wanted, for tan mean depth is about seven feet and the owners wanted not less than thirty feet of water. A petition was sent to the last Congress asking the Government to dig along this frontage a channel 400 feet wide. It was shown the Government that if this were done the riparlan owners would immediately make the shore front valuable by erecting large docks, wharves and storage houses. The assurances received from Congress were sufficient to cause some of the shore-owners to begin to fill in, and now quite a large peninsula of made land extends out in the bay. Congress adjourned, however without doing anything for these riparlan owners, and when they learned that no appropriation would be made they ceased to fill in and appealed to the Legislature to grant them the right to fill in $,000 feet further in the bay than the exterior lines as now located. If this should be done the statue of 'Liberty' on Bedloe's Island would in a very short time be located on main land and a portion of New Jersey and the width of the beautiful bay would be decreased about one half, but the shore owners would have deep water and a large acquisition to their real estate. It is for the purpose of considering this matter that the joint committee will soon hold a meeting. There appears to be much that an tagonizes this last scheme, but the strongest opponent is perhaps the State of New York, which, it is said, will endeavor to interest the National Government in an effort to prevent New Jersey from making th ject of extending the shore from Communipaw to the lower portion of Greenville, 8,000

SUBPRISED THEIR FRIENDS.

Marriage of Sarah Cowell, the Elecutionist

NEW YORK, July 2 .- The marriage of Miss meine of the Lyceum Theater Company, which was made public yesterday, was exclusively predicted by the Star's notice of an engagement between the happy pair two months ago. To all but the most intimate friends of Miss Cowell and Mr. Lemoine, however, the wedding was a complete surprise. It was performed by Rev. Warren L. Hoagland at the residence of the bride, No. 475 Fourth avenue. Miss Sarah Cowell, who is no relation of Miss Sydney Cowell, first made the acquaintance of Mr. Lemoine some years ago while both were amgaged in a theatrical performance. Since then Miss Cowell has abjured the professional stage and confined herself exclusively to private readings in sculusive social circles in the metropolis. It is related of the banker-poet Stedman that on one occasion, being invited to go to a reading, he refused, saying: "There is only one woman in New York worth hearing."

"Miss Sarah Cowell."

"It is she whom I wish you to hear," was the response. Miss Cowell and Mr. Lemoine, however, the

"It is she whom I wish you to hear," was the response.
Of Mr. Wm. J. Lemoine it is almost unnecessary to say a word in view of his recent success in "The Wife" at the Lyceum Theater. The characters which he created in "Jim, the Fennam" and "The Highess Bidder, "are also fresh in the public memory. Mr. Lemoine has delightful social qualities and remarkable talent for water color painting. An eminent critic has remarked that the atmospheric conditions of Mr. Lemoine's paintings were perfect. Mr. Lemoine is in the prime of life. He said yesterday that he intended to take a short trip, after which he would depart for California with the Lyceum Company, and Mrs. Lemoine would go too.

insultation of Lincoln and Seward and Its Result—The Secretary Convinces the President That the Prisoners Must Be Given Up-Particulars of Their Depart-ure From Fort Warren-Courtesy of Slidell and Astonishing Conduct of the Virginian—How Mason Compelled a Search of His Baggage and Person— Befusing to Walk to the Boat, He Was Lugged on Board by Sailors and Dumped Into a Chair—An Instance of Unreasonable Obstinacy Seldom Equaled.

"Some years ago," said Harris T. Clark of Washington, D. C., a gentleman formerly connected with the Internal Revenue service. "I had a long talk with John G. Nicolay, formerly Lincoln's private secretary, about the circumstances attending the surrender of the rebel commissioners, Mason and Slidell. I expected that he would incorporate it in his life of Lincoln, but as he has not done so, think that I may as well give to the public a very peculiar chapter in our history, which, as far as I know, has never been made public. Mr. Nicolay said that after the rebel commissioners had been taken from the Trent, Mr Lincoln called upon Mr. Seward at his office earrying with him a roll of manuscript con ng his views on the subject.

LINCOLN AND SEWARD.

Before reading it he asked Mr. Seward for his opinion and the latter gave it fully, to the effect that the capture was in contravention of international law and that the prisoners would have to be given up. After some dis-cussion and interchange of views, Mr. Lin-coln walked to the fireplace, tore up his man-uscript and threw it into the fire. No one ever knew what it contained, but it was evidently opposed to the ideas of Mr. Seward, whose tenability of his own position.

"When the decision to release the prisoners was reached," continued Mr. Clark, "one of the President's secretaries, whether Mr. Nicolay himself or some one else I Nicolay himself or some one clee I to for warren to superintend their embarkation on the tug which was sent to Fort Warren to superintend their embarkation on the tug which was receive them near Massachusetts Bay. The prisoners were told that they were to be released, and asked to prepare their baggage for embarkation. When the steamer accompanied by a file of marines, went to the oasemate in which they had been confined and said; "Gentlemen, to the oasemate in which they had been confined and said; "Gentlemen, to the oasemate in which they had been confined and said; "Gentlemen, to the interests of the United States Government. shake of the head. Again the request was addressed to him, and again he preserved the same sullen silence. There was only one thing to be done, and that was to have him carried bodily to the vessel.

CARRYING A PLENIFOTENTIARY.

Four sellors were accordingly summoned, and after a third request to Mr. Mason to use his ordinary means of locomotion had met with the ill success attending its predecessors, two sallors took hold of his legs, two took him by the arms and shoulders and took him to the gang-plank. As they were crossing this, the two who had hold of his shoulders pretended to let him silp, and although he was not in the least burt, he for a moment assumed a most undignified position. He was taken on board and rather roughly dumped into a chair, where he remained until the English steamer was reached. Sildell, who had behaved with perfect dignity and propriety all through, evidently did not know what to make of his colleague's conduct. His face was a study, amusement, contempt and chagrin at being associated with sudh a man. struggling for the mastery. So contempt this childish and ridiculous a performance as that of Mason has seldom been witnessed. I understand that he stated while in England that he had no objectionable papers about him, but wished to give the Yankee officials as much trouble as possible. In this he certainly succeeded, but at an expense of dignity which few men would have been willing to pay.

A PECULIAR CASE. The Arrest of James M. Simmons and His

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 2 .- United States morning from Grant County, having in custody James M. Simmons and his sister, Mrs. Lorena Johnson, arrested on a farm beyond Sheridan, charged with sending an obscene letter through the mail. The case is peculiar. Simmons formerly lived in Missis peculiar. Simmons formerly lived in Mississippi. Some time ago Gen. Tucker, Postmaster at Okolona, Miss., was assassinated, being shot dead through a window. Simmons was apprehended on circumstantial evidence, tried and acquitted. It is alleged that public opinion believed him guilty. After the trial simmons remeved to this State, settling near Benton. Last year, as is charged, he wrote a letter to Mrs. Gen. Tucker, who is now postmistress at Okolona. The letter, stripped of obscenity, is as follows:

"I can say this and tell the truth. I shot Gen. Tucker through the heart. I shot him through the glass."

BACK FROM LOS ANGELES.

F. W. Vergien, Alias Mueller, to Answer a

F. W. Vergien, alias W. Mueller, was brought here this morning from Los Angeles, Cal., to answer to a charge of embezzling $2,000 from the M. Ehret Roofing Co. He was in charge of George E. Patton, who was acting Cal., to answer to a charge of embezzing $2,000 from the M. Ehrst Roofing Co. He was in charge of George E. Patton, who was acting in the capacity of agent for the State of Missouri in the matter. Vergien is $2 years of age, is married and has resided here several years. He has been in the employ of the Ehret Roofing Co. for nearly a year. In the latter part of March he left the firm and went to California, as was afterward learned. After he had gone his employers also discovered that he was short in his accounts, and on May $31, they secured a warrant charging him with the embezziement of $2,000 on or about March $25. That was the time he left their employ. He went when the firm consolidated with the Warren Roofing Co. under the name of the Ehret-Warren Manufacturing Co. After the warrant had been secured application was made to the Governor for a requisition. Mr. Yantis, his secretary, telegraphed Mr. Dierkes, the assistant Prosecuting Attorney, that the Governor was not at his office and that he would like to know the particulars of the case before granting the papers, as the distance was very great and in case of conviction the State would be required to pay all expenses of the trip. Mr. Dierkes told him Vergien was bookkeeper for the Ehret Roofing Co., and that the firm was a responsible concern, and alleged he had taken the money. They would send for him themselves, and take chances on getting their money back from the State by securing his conviction. Then the papers were issued, and George E. Patton, who was made agent for the State at the request of Mr. W. E. Campe, the company's representative here, went to California before he left, returned with him. Vergien is said have admitted embezzing about $800 from the firm, but dembes naving taken as much as $2,000. His wife and baby, whom he had sent to California, he says, and his sailary was small. While he does not say so directly he intimates that this was the cause of his taking what money he did. To a Post-DispartoH reporter who saw him he made no dir
